I agree, they can't sell that idea. I know based on the comment in the committee our team is aware of the issue and ultimately prepared to handle it. I just wanted to be sure that if the change in plans accelerates the issue they aren't surprised.

I just hope and pray those terrorists try to complain that Baylor shouldn't build an on campus stadium if it takes their building. Talk about a stark contrast. "Let's forego progress so we can save the free building Herb Reynolds gave us in the 1990's ". I don't think they can sell that one.

I had a thought/question after the meeting regarding the release of the conceptual drawing of the stadium. This thought came to me as the result of a comment that was made yesterday in the Facilities and Finance Committee meeting. Does the drawing show the area where the Alumni Association is currently located? If yes, does the drawing still show the Alumni Association building in that location? In no way am I trying to change any decision that was made today. I am simply trying to give a "heads up" in case this issue surfaces soon once the drawing is released. Thank you for your part in the great meeting we had yesterday and today and for all the work you do for our University.
